Richard Stone, a British artist who works between London and Italy, has created an eye-pleasing series of marble works. In this series, Stone exceeds our expectations of hard material with abstract pieces full of movement and subtle features.

Talking about the series, Stone said: “From classical times to now, the sensuality of marble invites a tactile engagement, but sculpture in all its forms still has this incredibly potent power to engage so many of our senses in how we encounter and interpret it.”
